

Deutsche Bank Americas Foundation

2000 Report of Contributions

Dear Friends and Colleagues:

This report reflects the first full year of activities of the Deutsche Bank Americas Foundation. Formed after Bankers Trust and Deutsche Bank joined together in mid-1999, the Foundation represents a commitment to respond to local needs and enrich those communities, throughout the United States, Latin America and Canada, where the Bank operates.

The focus of the Foundation's grantmaking is to bring economic opportunity to distressed communities and disadvantaged people. It also seeks to enliven communities with access to arts and culture by fostering the exchange of creative expression among diverse populations.

The Foundation's work to revitalize low- and moderate-income New York City neighborhoods is complemented by the lending and investment role of the Bank's Community Development Group. In 2000, we further enhanced this effort with the launch of the New Initiatives Fund. This Fund is capitalized through the Foundation and Bank Enterprise Awards (BEA), and makes Program Related Investments/Recoverable Grants to projects that cannot carry conventional debt.

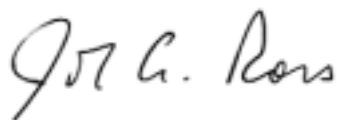

Connecting communities to the emerging global economy, with a focus on young people, has been the impetus for many of the past year's grants. The Foundation is a lead corporate sponsor of the Model U.N. Program of the United Nations Association; the newly launched Youth Employment Summit (YES); and Banking on the Future, a financial literacy program. All these programs seek to provide young people with the tools necessary to succeed during these times of rapid and complex change.

Working with our colleagues in Germany has provided the opportunity to help build a new global corporate citizenship commitment for the Bank as a whole. The cornerstones of this effort include broadening our microfinance efforts and creating a more integrated commitment to the environment and its sustainability.

It has also been our privilege to sponsor major exhibitions at the Baltimore Museum of Art, the Jewish Museum and the Guggenheim. We also sponsored a once-in-a-lifetime performance of staged opera by Carreras, Domingo and Pavarotti, marking the Metropolitan Opera's millennium celebration and the 200th Anniversary of Alex. Brown.

These are indeed exciting times for Deutsche Bank in the Americas—for our business and for our communities.

Sincerely,

John A. Ross
Chairman

Gary S. Hattem
President

Tomorrow Starts Today

The Deutsche Bank Americas Foundation administers the philanthropic activities of Deutsche Bank within the United States, Latin America and Canada. Based in New York City, where the majority of grants are awarded, the Foundation supports community development, education, the arts and the environment.

Whether directly or through the Deutsche Bank Americas Foundation, Deutsche Bank makes grants to organizations that enhance human dignity, enliven the human spirit and seek creative solutions to complex contemporary problems. The Bank relies on the talents of its personnel and the leadership of its management to leverage its financial commitments in addressing local needs.

Deutsche Bank provides philanthropic support in several different ways. Direct grants assist a variety of nonprofit organizations—from fledgling community-based groups to world-class cultural institutions—that meet the Foundation's guidelines and correspond to the Bank's overall philosophy of responsible corporate citizenship. The Matching Gifts program matches donations made by our U.S.-based staff to charitable organizations headquartered in the United States. The Volunteer Assistance Fund provides direct grants, on a competitive basis, to organizations where Deutsche Bank's U.S.-based employees volunteer their time.

This publication features photos taken by students enrolled in ICP at the Point. The Deutsche Bank Americas Foundation is a proud sponsor of this collaboration between the International Center of Photography and The Point Community Development Corporation to operate and sustain a photographic education center and student-run photographic studio and business in the Bronx.

Grants from the Deutsche Bank Americas Foundation support neighborhood-based organizations that develop affordable housing, create new businesses, generate employment opportunities and address critical service needs such as job training, child care and youth development. Committed to building healthy and sustainable communities, Deutsche Bank works in partnership with outstanding local and national organizations to help community-based initiatives take root and succeed.

Two notable programs of the Foundation are its Working Capital Program and the Supportive Housing and Rehabilitation Effort (SHARE). The Working Capital Program provides multi-year support for neighborhood-based developers to incubate revitalization projects, often making them ready for conventional financing. SHARE provides multi-year resources for organizations in the process of locating and securing real estate that can be developed as permanent housing for the homeless with special needs. Both programs include interest-free financing in addition to philanthropic grants. Recognizing the ongoing need for this “patient capital,” the Foundation established the New Initiatives Fund (NIF). The Fund is capitalized in part from financial awards from the U.S. Department of Treasury’s Bank Enterprise Award Program. The NIF supports projects that are not appropriate for outright grants or conventional debt.

In response to the expressed needs of many community groups to work more closely with residents of their neighborhoods, in 2000 the Foundation created the DB Constituency Building and Leadership Development Awards. These resources are being used to foster the talents of grass-roots leaders while helping to engage parents in local schools; bring together new immigrants with established residents to work on common goals; foster new lines of communication between landlords and tenants; and establish working relationships among merchants.

Education

Deutsche Bank's commitment to the revitalization of low- and moderate-income communities is complemented by its support of public education. With a goal of creating successful and high-performing neighborhood schools, resources are directed to programs and institutions that have proven effective in improving student learning and raising academic performance. Grants support teacher training and development, parental and community involvement and public/private educational partnerships. In addition, education grants promote financial literacy and opportunities for young people from disadvantaged backgrounds to pursue careers in business and finance.

In addition to providing financial support to Deutsche Bank's partner schools, the Foundation makes grants to organizations dedicated to providing professional development opportunities for public school teachers, including New York University's Professional Development Laboratory Program and the National Academy Foundation. In an effort to ensure that high school teachers are equipped to teach economics and finance, Deutsche Bank joined a consortium of financial institutions to sponsor the "World of Finance and You" conference for New York State educators.

Rising to the challenge of preparing youth to be economically independent, Deutsche Bank partnered with Operation HOPE, Inc. to bring Banking on the Future—a financial literacy initiative—to New York City's public schools. By educating students about the importance of financial literacy and economic empowerment, Deutsche Bank is helping to prepare New York City's children for the new global economy.

Arts

Deutsche Bank supports those premier arts and cultural institutions that contribute to the vitality of the local communities in which our employees live and work. Recent sponsorship of exhibitions and performances included the Brooklyn Children's Museum's "Face to Face: Dealing with Prejudice and Discrimination"; the National Gallery of Art's "Stieglitz and Modern Art in America"; the New York Historical Society's "Elder Grace: Nobility in Aging"; the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum's "Amazons of the Avant-Garde"; and "Manet: The Still Life Paintings" at the Walters Museum of Art. Deutsche Bank was also privileged to serve as lead sponsor for a historic performance of staged opera by Carreras, Domingo and Pavarotti at The Metropolitan Opera's Millennium Celebration.

Deutsche Bank's community arts initiatives provide low- and moderate-income communities with access to arts education and opportunities for children and youth to develop their artistic talents. The Foundation also supports programs that utilize the arts as a tool for economic development and job creation. All grants seek to encourage the exchange of creative expression among diverse communities.

In an effort to facilitate career development opportunities in the arts, the Foundation made a grant to fund the International Center of Photography's internship/mentoring program at The Point, a Bronx-based community arts organization. In the summer of 2000, Deutsche Bank sponsored Doing Art Together's "Art and Architecture," a week-long cultural arts program in which children living in temporary housing were led through the city by a teaching team of architects, preservationists and artists. Deutsche Bank was also pleased to sponsor New York University Tisch School's Urban Ensemble program, which offers students the opportunity to facilitate a weekly arts project in a community-based setting.

Environment

The past year was an important one in working to align the Americas with Deutsche Bank's global commitment to the environment and sustainability. Working with a broad coalition of nonprofit organizations, under the leadership of the Pratt Institute Center for Community and Environmental Development (PICCED), the conference "Beyond Brownfields" was sponsored. The conference, as well as a planning study commissioned for an abandoned industrial site in the Bushwick section of Brooklyn, benefited from a team of planners and environmentalists from the German State of North Rhein-Westphalia who shared their experiences and expertise.

Internally, the Bank hosted "Sustainability Week: Business and the Environment," a series of events that introduced Deutsche Bank staff in the Americas to the implications of sustainability and its effect on their businesses and colleagues. The active involvement of Deutsche Bank staff in environmental issues within their own communities was encouraged through a newly launched Environmental Sustainability Grants Program. A broad range of projects received Foundation support, including the Coastal Conservancy Association, Green Guerillas and the American Discovery Trail Society.

Latin America / Canada

During 2000, Deutsche Bank Americas Foundation extended its reach to Latin America/Canada. Close working relationships with senior Deutsche Bank country representatives and employee committees are defining philanthropic initiatives that respond to local needs and are consistent with the Foundation's overall focus and priorities. In Mexico, Deutsche Bank is supporting Pro-Vivah in the creation of a new housing settlement for the very poor in Acapulco. In Canada, grants were made to Eva's Initiatives, an organization that provides shelter and a range of services to homeless and at-risk youth, and the Toronto City mission, which provides after-school programming to inner-city children.

As part of its overall philanthropic effort, Deutsche Bank allocates funds to special event fundraisers, select charity dinners, strategic initiatives and employee programs.

In 2000, the Volunteer Assistance Fund (VAF) awarded 31 grants totaling more than $150,000. Now in its ninth year, the Fund supports employee volunteer efforts by awarding grants to community service groups where Deutsche Bank's U.S.-based employees are actively involved. To be eligible for a VAF grant, an organization must serve low-income neighborhoods or individuals. VAF grants made in 2000 included awards to Covenant House, Neighborhood Initiatives Development Corporation and Big Brothers/Big Sisters of New York City.
